Communion Reflection... It's not easy to convert the rich. It's like this. The more people have, the more they have to lose. The more they have to lose, the more fearful they become. The more fearful they become, the more defensive they get. The more defensive they get, the more they cut themselves off. The more they cut themselves off, the more closed they get. The result is that they end up with a withered heart. And it's impossible to breathe life into a withered heart. To close one's heart is to begin to die. To open one's heart is to begin to live. At the end of the day it's not what we carry in our purses or bank accounts that matters. It's what we carry in our hearts. That is where the rich are found wanting. Poverty of heart is the worst form of poverty.

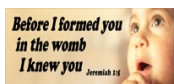

Flowers for Our Lady of Guadalupe for the week of Sept 28th to Oct 4th are being offered for St. Mary's Grup po di Padre Pio Pope Leo XIV @Pontifex...Our work is in the Lord's hands. We are merely small and inadequate instruments, "useless servants," as the Gospel says (Lk 17:10). Yet, if we entrust ourselves to Him, if we remain united to Him, great things happen, precisely through our poverty.

Feast of St. Michael Monday, Sept. 29th

St. Michael, the patron Saint of the Archdiocese of Toronto is to be celebrated throughout our parishes. Please pray with us.

Prayer to St. Michael the Archangel
Saint Michael the Archangel, defend us in battle. Be our protection against the wickedness and snares of the devil. May God rebuke him, we humbly pray; and do Thou, O Prince of the Heavenly Host - by the Divine Power of God cast into hell, Satan and all the evil spirits, who roam throughout the world seeking the ruin of souls. Amen.

On the Lighter Side...One Sunday after mass, the parish priest saw a little boy examining a big wooden plaque on the wall. The plaque was engraved with a long list of names and flags hung on both sides of it. "Father," asked the little boy, "what is this?" The pastor replied, "It is a memorial to all the men and women who died in the service." They stood looking at all of the names in silence. A few moments later, the little boy asked him: "Father, was it at the eight or the ten o'clock mass?"

Apologetics... 1. "There's no such thing as absolute truth. What's true for you may not be true for me."

People use this argument a lot when they disagree with a statement and have no other way to support their idea. After all, if nothing is true for everyone, then they can believe whatever they want and there's nothing you can say to make them change their minds. But look at that statement again: "There's no such thing as absolute truth." Isn't that, in itself, a statement that's being made absolutely? In other words, it applies some rule or standard to everyone across the board — exactly what the relativists say is impossible. They have undone their own argument simply by stating their case.

The other problem with this statement is that no relativist actually believes it. If someone said to you, "There is no absolute truth," and you punched him in the stomach, he'd probably get upset. But by his own creed, he'd have to accept that while punching someone in the stomach may be wrong for him, it might not be wrong for you. This is when they'll come back with an amendment to the original statement by saying, "As long as you're not hurting others, you're free to do and believe what you like." But this is an arbitrary distinction (as well as another absolute statement). Who says I can't hurt others? What constitutes "hurt"? Where does this rule come from? If this statement is made based on personal preference, it means nothing for anyone else. "Do no harm" is in itself an appeal to something greater — a sort of universal dignity for the human person. But again, the question is where does this dignity come from? As you can see, the further you delve into these questions, the closer you come to understanding that our concepts of right and truth are not arbitrary but are based in some greater, universal truth outside ourselves — a truth written in the very nature of our being. We may not know it in its entirety, but it can't be denied that this truth exists.

Parents often tell children to watch the company they keep. Adults realize the influence others can have on their child either positive or negative. The same is true in the adult world. People often remark how married life has changed someone for the better. They see the influence a spouse can have on a person who may not have been as happy with life before they found someone to share their sorrows and joys. Closeness with Christ can also have its effect on us. People who take the time to identify with the values and faith that Christ proclaimed possess an inner serenity. That doesn't say they never worry about anything. It merely holds that life's crises can be a little more tolerable when we have a deep faith in Who is watching over it all. Can people see His influence in your life by the inner peace you possess?

HAVE A NICE WEEK!!
